In-House Financing and Scholarship information

The California College of Ayurveda[i] [2] offers in-house financing to allow students to make low monthly payments. From time to time the College needs office assistance at our Nevada City campus. We give priority consideration to current students for these positions. To be considered, include your resume and indicate an interest when you send in your application.

Students who qualify for vocational training or vocational rehabilitation funds may apply to their local or regional programs for financing. For students unable to take advantage of these options, the College also offers the Dhanvantari Scholarship Program, a need-based partial scholarship available to a limited number of students. Contact our Financial Aid Department for more information. Programs are generally enrolled in and paid for separately; however, we do also offer the option of making combined payments in advance for special discounts.
